Lawsuit filed to stop CV Ranch, all subdivisions

A LAWSUIT HAS BEEN FILED in Monterey County Superior Court to halt the development of the Carmel Valley Ranch and to stop the county from approving any more subdivisions until its General Plan is brought up to date.

The suit was filed in Salinas Tuesday by attorney Richard Rosenthal on behalf of Harry Holt of Carmel.

It asks that the county "rescind its approval of the tentative subdivision map for the Carmel Valley Ranch subdivision ... and to rescind the approval of the Specific Plan" for the project.

The complaint also asks for an injunction restraining Monterey County from any further subdivision approvals or from enacting or amending its zoning ordinances "until the county has adopted a General Plan that meets the requirements of Government Code Section 65302."

SEVERAL COUNTIES IN CALIFORNIA have been hit recently with restrictions on growth because of inadequacies in their general plans.

The attorney general last month called a halt to all development in rapidly-growing Lake County, in northern California. Lake County does not have any general plan.

Santa Cruz County last month was handed guidelines from the state Office of Planning and Research (OPR) which ban subdivisions and rezoning in most rural areas until its General Plan is revised.

Mendocino County is under a state-imposed ban on all construction, except in a few limited areas, because it has an inadequate General Plan.

Sonoma County was under pressure in the last half of 1977 to adopt a new General Plan. The state attorney general's office was ready to file suit to halt any major subdivisions approved by the county in the interim, and two projects were halted by lawsuits or threat of lawsuit before the county adopted a new plan in January 1978.

Marin County faced the same pressure in 1977 from the attorney general's office before its General Plan was revised and brought up to date. The city of Santa Barbara was under a total building moratorium during its General Plan revision.

THE SUIT FILED on behalf of Holt alleges that the county general plan is deficient because the following elements have not been brought up to date and adopted: Land Use, Circulation, Housing, Conservation, Noise, Safety and Open Space.

The suit states that "the elements and parts thereof do not comprise an integrated, internally consistent and compatible statement of policies as required ..." and that the county "has not sought nor been granted an extension of time from the director of the state Office of Planning and Research within which to complete the General Plan."

Specifically, the complaint alleges that:

• The county failed to adopt a Land Use Element "which would describe the population density and building intensity for each land use category depicted on the general plan land use map."

• The Circulation Element is "deficient because the information in the element is to be correlated with the Land Use Element, but this cannot be adequately done because the Land Use Element is inadequate ..."

• The Housing Element "lacks, among other things, an adequate definition of the housing needs of the county ... of low and moderate income groups and the physical capacity of the land to provide new housing. In addition, there is no clear program as to how the housing needs of the county will be met ..."

• The Conservation Element "lacks a description and analysis of water source availabilities ..."

• The county's Noise Element "lacks, among other things, noise exposure information ... for both near and long-term levels of growth and traffic ..."

• The Safety Element is "inadequate because it does not provide for adequacy of access to wildland fire areas ... in addition, the element does not address policies and programs for the protection of the community from landslides or highly erodable areas and does not include areas subject to dam inundation."

• The Open Space Element is "inadequate because it lacks recognition of the need for open space for public health and safety, and the assessment of present and future demand for recreation facilities."

Steve Rikala, of the Office of Planning and Research, warned supervisors early in May that "The common practice of adopting broadly drawn and vague policies is unacceptable on legal as well as political grounds." The county is hurrying to update an admittedly inadequate housing element before a Jan. 1 state-imposed deadline.

The county's problems are made worse because of lack of funds for additional personnel in the planning department caused by the passage of Proposition 13.

Suit would force county to rescind CV Ranch approval, halt subdivisions because County General Plan is badly out of date.

Officials of the OPR warned the board of supervisors in May that the five elements of the plan they reviewed showed "a frequent absence of clearly defined plan policy and general shopping lists" of techniques to make the plan a reality.

HOLT, WHO HAS APPEARED at meetings of the planning commission and board of supervisors for the past several months requesting that they voluntarily halt further development because of the inadequacy of the county's General Plan, said he needs community support to follow through with the suit.

"It will be very expensive to carry this lawsuit through to successful completion. Donations are badly needed. If we don't get enough public suport, it may be necessary to drop the suit."

Holt was to have "served" the lawsuit to the board of supervisors at their regular meeting Tuesday.

The following is a first draft, obtained by this newspaper, of the text of the suit. Minor changes in language may have been made in the final document filed Tuesday. We present the complaint in its entirety because of the effect the suit could have in the future development of the county.

SUPERIOR COURT OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA
COUNTY OF MONTEREY
HARRY H. HOLT III, Plaintiff
vs.
COUNTY OF MONTEREY, Respondent-Defendant,
and
CARMEL VALLEY RANCH and DOES I through X,
Real Parties in Interest.
PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE
AND
COMPLAINT FOR INJUNCTIVE RELIEF

PLAINTIFFS ALLEGE, AS A SEPARATE AND FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION, THE FOLLOWING CLAIM:

2. HARRY HOLT is a resident of Monterey County who uses and enjoys the attributes of the Carmel Valley.

3. The respondent county is now, and at all times mentioned herein, was a political subdivision of the State of California.

4. The real party in interest named in the petition, Carmel Valley Ranch, is the owner of the real property which is the subject of this action, Assessor's Parcel Nos. 416-021-13 and 14, 416-026-01 and 04, and is named in this petition as the party proposing to subdivide the subject real property; the 100 acres more or less of the Carmel Valley Ranch.

4.5 DOES 1 through 10 are named as real parties in interest who may have an interest in subdividing the subject property or carrying out the construction activities attendant to subdividing the property. Plaintiffs are presently unaware of the true names and capacities of Does 1 through 10 but will request leave of the Court to amend their complaint to name these entities, when said true identities and capacities are ascertained.

5. Government Code Sections 65300 and 65301 require each county to adopt a comprehensive, long-term general plan, containing specified mandatory elements as set forth in Government Code Section 65302.

6. Respondent in violation of Government Code Section 65302 failed to adopt such a comprehensive, long-term general plan containing the mandatory elements prescribed by Section 65302. Specifically, respondent failed to adopt a land use element as required by Section 65302(a) which would describe the population density and building intensity for each land use category depicted on the County's general plan land use map. Secondly, the circulation element as required by Government Code Section 65302(b) is inadequate because the information in the circulation element is to be correlated with the land use element, but this cannot be adequately done because the land use element is inadequate. Third, respondent has further failed to adopt a comprehensive county-wide housing element meeting the specific requirements of Section 65302(c), and following the regulations established under Section 41134 of the Health and Safety Code, in that the County's housing element lacks, among other things, an adequate definition of the housing needs of the county and, in particular, housing which needs rehabilitation, projected housing needs of the expanding population, the housing needs of low and moderate income groups and the physical capacity of the land in the county to provide new housing. In addition, there is no clear program set out as to how the housing needs of the county will be met, who will be responsible for carrying out these programs, and the time frame for implementation. Fourth, the conservation element as required by Government Code Section 65302(d) lacks, among other things, a description and analysis of water source availabilities in sub-areas of the county, and there has been no coordination of this element with any county-wide water agency and other city and district water agencies. Fifth, respondent has further failed to adopt a noise element meeting the specific requirements of Government Code Section 655302(g), in that the County's noise element lacks, among other things, noise, exposure information in terms of noise contours expressed in community noise equivalent levels (C.N.E.L.) or day/night average levels (Ldn) as required by law and quantification of the community noise environment in terms of noise exposure contours for both near and long-term levels of growth and traffic as required by law. Sixth, the safety element as required by Government Code Section 65302(i) is inadequate because it lacks, among other things, adequacy of access to wildland fire areas in that there is no definition of evacuation routes nor minimum road widths, and there is no statement of peak load water requirements. In addition, this element does not address policies and programs for the protection of the community from landslides or highly erodible areas and does not include areas subject to dam inundation. Seventh, the open space element as required by Government Code Section 65302(1) is inadequate because it lacks, among other things, an adequate recognition of the need for open space for public health and safety, and the assessment of present and future demand for recreation facilities is inadequate. Finally, the County General Plan is inadequate because it and the elements and parts thereof do not comprise an integrated, internally consistent and compatible statement of policies as required by Government Code Section 65302.5. Respondent has not sought nor been granted an extension of time from the Director of the State Office of Planning and Research within which to complete the County's General Plan.

6.5 Government Code Section 66473.5 provides that a County may approve a subdivision only if that subdivision is consistent with a duly adopted County General Plan meeting the requirements of Government Code Section 65302.

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION

Petitioners hereby incorporate paragraphs 1 through 6.5 as though fully set forth herein.

6.6. Government Code Section 65860 provides that a County may only enact zoning ordinances or amend zoning ordinances that are

FIRE DEPARTMENTS TO STAGE DRILL

Don't be alarmed if you wake up Saturday morning and see fire trucks parked on your street. The area fire departments; Mid-Carmel Valley, Carmel Valley, Rio Road, Carmel Highlands, Carmel and the California Department of Forestry, will be staging a simulated brush fire drill Saturday, June 30 at 9 a.m. in the canyon beyond the Tierra Grande area of Carmel Valley.

The fire departments are joining together to formulate systems for handling brush fires. Major problems may occur in coordinating the various fire departments. Drills such as Saturday's help develop a pre-fire plan which enables the fire departments to be better prepared for possible brush fires.

BARRACUDAS PLAN BARBECUE, MEET

LETTERS

Letters to the editor are welcome. While there is no limit on the number of words, brevity is encouraged. New tax scheme

Dear Editor:

The Monterey County Public Works Department, under the direction of Bruce McClain, is sending letters to homeowners stating the intention to assess a new tax to finance special services because their funds have been reduced. This reduction in funds is due to Proposition 13.

They carefully word their correspondence stating that a public hearing will be held July 3, 1979, by the Board of Supervisors for approval.

Fellow citizens and taxpayers, don't be taken in by this sinister move. If this scheme is approved, it will open up "Pandora's Box" and we will all be back in the tax nightmare we experienced before the passage of Prop. 13.

If this proposal goes through, where will it end? This will leave the door open for all departments to get in on this free lunch program.

Prop. 13 was supposed to bring some responsibility, stability, and financial sense back to government. No new taxes were supposed to be levied without the approval of two-thirds of the voters. Evidently, the message hasn't gotten through to our civil servants.

Your letters and phone calls to your elected representatives voicing your concern and outrage to these unorthodox methods would be beneficial.

Ultimate solution

Dear Editor:

I'm very impressed with the "logic" of Patrick Franklin's letter of May 17, 1979.

If the speed (in the present 55 mph zones) was lowered to 45 mph, it would take approximately two and one-third minutes longer to reach Highway 101 from Carmel Valley Village. For a busy man that is surely important!

However, let's be patient. Perhaps it won't be too long before those people who come too slowly out of more than 209 driveways; those children on bikes and horses; those joggers and hitchhikers, will all be successfully injured or even killed.

What a solution! Then, without having to pass slow cars over double lines and around curves, busy people who haven't "all the time in the world" can sleep two or three minutes more each morning.

PADRE BASEBALL TEAM HONORED

DAISIES AND ivy trimmed the red and white tablecloths at the awards banquet honoring the 1979 Championship Carmel High School Baseball Team. Many signs congratulating the Champs were hung about the CHS cafeteria and a montage of team photos surrounded a plaque which was presented to Coach Monty Feekes.

Joan Vandervort of Carmel headed the moms who planned the affair. She was assisted by Marilyn Raynes, Kathy Sherman and Carol Dean Matson, all of Carmel Valley.

In addition to the celebration of their Central Coast Section Championship, it was a fitting climax for graduating seniors—many of whom had played together since Little League, or had competed against each other in All Star series.

Each varsity player escorted his mother to the speakers' table where she was presented with a long-stemmed rose and thanked for her support. The dads were also introduced and presented their sons with an awards packet containing The Carmel High Block C, Mission Trail Athletic League Championship certificate, Region IV Championship certificate and the CCS championship medal.

Named to share co-honors as most valuable varsity players were Neil Vandervort and Mike Odello, presented by Babe Ruth Coach George Thayler and assistant Carmel coach Steve Hare.

John Lucido and Neil Vandervort shared the co-captain award and Paul St. Germain was named most improved.

Pat Kelly accepted the Gerald Artellan Stopper Award for pitching excellence and Joe Limov received the Paul Artellan Award for Scholarship and Team Leadership.

Other varsity champs included Valley-ites Dwight Spicher, Buzz Fulton, Greg Raynes, Brent Eagling, Tim Sherman, Mike Matson, Dave Spear and Carmel-ites Cory Bliesner, Nigel Cooper, Mark Clark, Gary Childs, Mike Wecker and Bob Berry.

Frosh-soph players also were recognized for their season performances. Randy Evans of Carmel Valley was tapped for the most valuable player award; the stopper award for pitching was earned by Ken Hall of the Valley; most improved player was John Franklin of CV and the most inspirational was Matt Bordonaro of Carmel.

A slide show presented at the banquet of photographs taken during the season triggered many stories and memories of Carmel High's greatest baseball season.

GRIFFITHS LEAVE FOR TWO-YEAR SOJOURN

Off to an exciting future—but making it abundantly clear that it is only temporary and they are not saying goodbye to the Peninsula forever—are Pat and Win Griffith.

Their two-year sojourn will be in Washington, D.C., where Win has been since the first of the year as editor with the House Judiciary Committee. He is working closely with the committee chairman, Congressman Peter Rodino, who was chairman of the impeachment proceedings. Win is presently involved in such diversified writings as a review of the immigration service and the proposal before the House on the Constitutional Convention.

Pat, former Outlook editor and for many years a feature writer with the Herald, will continue to cover news on the Hill for the Herald and Toledo Blade with the Washington bureau.

It is a return to Washington for the Griffiths who were residents when Win was on the Hubert Humphrey staff. It is where their son, Kevin, was born. Since 1968 was their last visit to Washington, D.C., Kevin and daughter Christine are making excited plans to explore every inch of the area.

Numerous farewell parties have honored the popular couple and their many friends share the sentiments on a poster made for them at St. Dunstan's, "Have a good time on your sabbatical"—a term which seemed to assure their return.

They will be happy to have news of the area. Letters may reach them at: 3217 Dominion Blvd., Alexandria, VA 22305.

Fire departments face fund crisis

THE CARMEL MID-VALLEY Fire Department will run out of money on August 15, unless the State Legislature provides "bailout funds" says Chief Ron Zeise.

Chief William Sims of the Carmel Valley Fire Department (CVFD) says his department will go broke on October 1 without "bailout funds."

The threatening drain of funds for these local fire departments was caused by the loss of tax revenue mandated by Proposition 13. "Thirteen was fantasy, this is reality," says Zeise.

The situation prompted directors of the Carmel Mid-Valley Fire Protection District to send a letter last week to Assemblyman Henry Mello, asking for his help in obtaining further "bailout funds." "Without his help," said Zeise, "we'll have to start laying off our paid employees."

The Mid-Valley station has four employees and 20 volunteers. The CVFD has 4 employees and 32 volunteer firefighters.

The paid personnel provide instant, immediate service, said Edgar Haber one of the district's five directors. Without them, the wait for a volunteer may cost a life or a home, said Haber.

"I hope we don't have to have a disaster to prove the indispensability of these emergency services," Haber said.

THE RIO ROAD STATION, District 43, can survive the year if it strips its reserve funds completely, said Ivy Upshaw, engineering aide at the County Public Works Department. There will also have to be some cuts in service, probably resulting in the release of at least one firefighter. Pending legislation concerning user fees for this district may solve the problems of the area, said Ms. Upshaw.

THE MID-VALLEY district operated on a $208,385.95 "bare-bones" budget last year. Less than 50 percent of its income was generated by local property taxes, while the state allocated less than 45 percent. The station made up the balance with its reserve fund. The reserve fund this year, however, has been exhausted by outstanding debts, including payments on a bank loan to build the station and contractual obligations on the station's fire trucks.

"A public service should operate on the same principles as a business," said Zeise. "With hand-to-mouth funding, it's very hard to do any long-range planning. We need to know what's available to make plans."

"This is not where corners can be cut," said Haber. "These services cannot be dispensed with."

TULARCITOS BEGINS SECOND SUMMER SESSION

Would you like to spend your summer vacation in the city?

If you are in grades 1-5 you will want to register for the second session of Tularcitos Summer School, "City Life vs. Country Life."

Utilizing all phases of the enrichment program, the students will create a city out of cardboard boxes and papier-mache. Tunnels and bridges will help to teach the numerous modes of transportation, and, of course, the arts, crafts, drama, music, cooking, carpentry will all deal with life in the big city.

Francis Leary is the director of the summer project and is assisted by Phyliss Shopbell and Joan Hopkins. The fee is $30 per session with other children in the family admitted for half price. Capacity enrollment is 60 students.

The first session, "Kids in America," found interest concentrated in the field of carpentry with one enterprising youngster completing a go-cart. A memorable treat for everyone was the day the group baked bread. With these and many other treats in the immediate future, drop by Tularcitos any weekday morning and talk to Leary about "A Vacation in The City."

AN OPERA PARTY

The opera Carmen was the destination of a group of Middle School faculty members following strawberry shortcake and champagne at the home of June Campbell.

Toasting the birthday of Roberta Hall were Janice Scott, Don Blakeman, Ken Wiese, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Williams and Mr. and Mrs. David Lee.

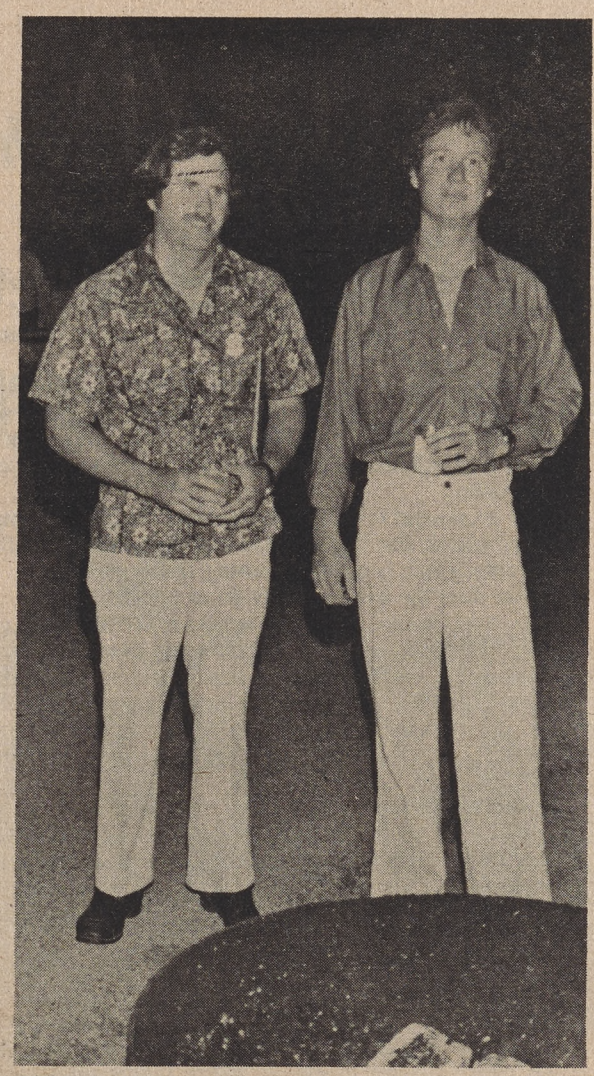
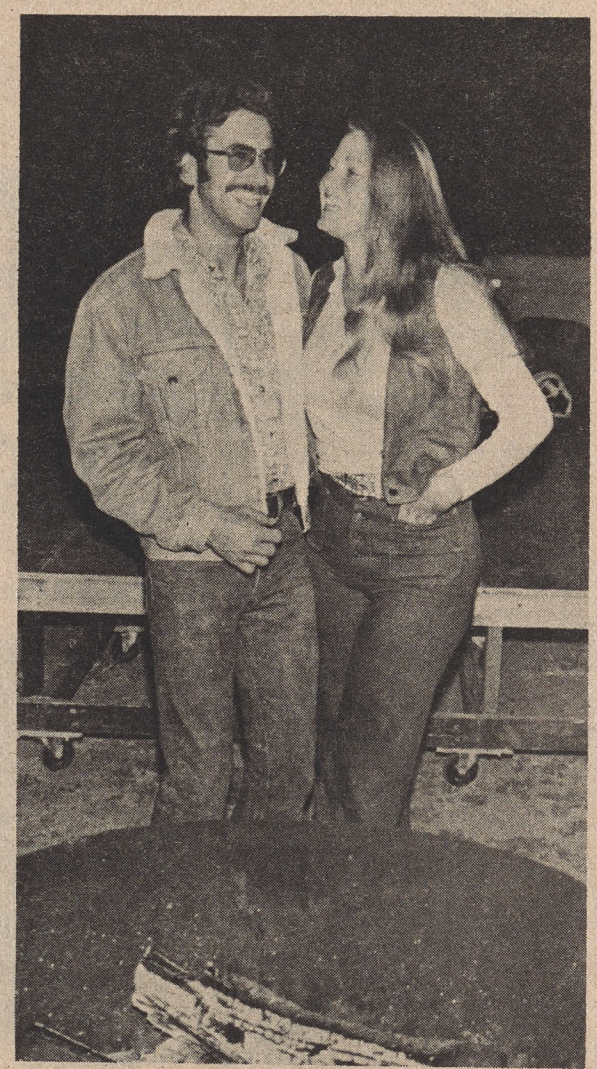
Volunteer firemen, boosters celebrate 31st anniversary

CARMEL VALLEY FIRE DEPARTMENT CHIEF Bill Sims and his wife Ida enjoy the cool breeze on the terrace of Hidden Valley.



CHAIRMEN OF THE 31ST ANNUAL Fireman's Ball were Gary Tate and Jeff Frye.



VINCE AND ANNETTE FRUMKIN dropped in from Saddle Mountain to attend the annual fund-raising event.

FIREMEN Don Corona and Dave Cumming tended bar at the ball.

The 31 years of volunteer fire protection for Carmel Valley were celebrated at the 31st Annual Fireman's Ball last Saturday night at Hidden Valley Music Seminars.

Members of the department and their friends danced to the music of The Royals from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. in the popular fund-raising event organized by volunteer Gary Tate and Lt. Jeffrey Frye.

Communications equipment, maintenance of the volunteers' building, insurance policies and the sponsorship of a Carmel Valley Little League team are a few of the expenses that will be met by the proceeds.

Since the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District was formed in 1948, the department has grown to 32 volunteers who are on 24-hour call.

Staff members, in addition to Frye, include Chief William Sims, engineer Kalani Fonseca and firefighter Jim Bowe. The four men are on duty at the fire station on Via Contenta from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., and serve as volunteers the remainder of each 24-hour period. Stacie Weber is the part-time secretary and bookkeeper.

In addition to being on 24-hour call, the volunteers meet each Tuesday evening for fire and first-aid drills and a general meeting.

As a separate volunteer service, 15 men serve on the first-aid crew with the American Red Cross Ambulance. Of these, 10 were trained at Monterey Peninsula College to qualify as Emergency Medical Technicians. Another five volunteers have been certified by the Red Cross as advanced first aiders.

Volunteers are encouraged to take courses in the Fire Science Department at MPC.

The district owns and operates eight vehicles plus the Red Cross Ambulance.

Property within the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District is assessed at $31.6 million. Last year, when the department responded to 108 fire calls, total loss by fire was limited to $237,025.

MUSIC FOR DANCING, both inside and out, was provided by The Royals.

GARDEN TALK:

Coping with the Valley's wind

By JERRY FOOTE

WIND IS ONE OF THE most prominent features of life in Carmel Valley. Whether you live near the mouth of the Valley or in its upper reaches, wind patterns are a mixed blessing with which you as gardeners must deal.

A typical 24 hours in the Valley brings a gradually increasing wind velocity coming in from the ocean from late morning until about sunset, a fairly calm period during which the heated land masses are cooling with the ensuing wind coming down valley.

The occasional inversions of air over the Valley bring their own problems, but it is the effect of the wind on the flora of the Valley which is most interesting to the gardener.

What does the wind actually do to plants?

The most obvious effect can be seen in the silhouette of trees which have been exposed to the wind over the years—the picturesque pattern of arching limbs leaning to the east and southeast is repeated over and over throughout our area. Some trees are affected more than others according to their structure, but few escape the influence of the strong prevailing wind.

Plants can be physically hurt by wind, as we have seen when chrysanthemums are flattened or the opening leaves of an iris are tattered. However, the most serious result is the loss of moisture within the plant by accelerated transpiration through the leaves.

WHAT IS TRANSPIRATION? In lay terms, it is the escape of water vapor into the outside air through the stomates, the breathing pores, of leaves. If a plant becomes dehydrated, photosynthesis is interrupted and leaves can literally cook.

Of course, plants are clever living things which adapt to climates through evolution, and thus we find that plants which are native to the Valley have their own methods for dealing with the problem.

The long dormant season during the hot, dry months and the physical characteristics of the leaves represent an adaptation which has evolved over thousands of years. Woe to the gardener who interferes with the process—he is asking for trouble when he waters and fertilizes native plants out of season.

FOR VALLEY RESIDENTS who would like to temper the velocity of the wind to make it more pleasant to live outside and for those who want to grow plants in places sheltered from the force of the wind, a system of windbreaks is a must. I have been trying for 10 years to perfect a series of natural and man-made masses to alter the impact of the wind, which sweeps inexorably over our exposed garden. The results are mixed, but I am encouraged as the plantings reach maturity.

The artificial windbreaks begin with the house itself, which is built with a long wing running north to south; this helps to block the wind away from the patio on the east. Beyond the wing, about 10 yards to the west, are an adobe wall, varying in height from four to six feet, and some grapestake fences which force the wind up in a rising pattern over the roof of the house.

In addition, we have planted hedges of privet, eleagnus, buckthorn and roses, both cistus and banksias, which have much the same effect. Beyond them to the west is a belt of trees of various ages and sizes which are the first line of defense from the wind. As the trees and hedges have increased in size, we find that we are more comfortable outdoors and the more delicate plants do better. Careful staking and tying helps a great deal.

A BONUS TO THE GARDEN is the difference in temperatures on either side of the adobe wall. At two in the afternoon there is sometimes a difference of 30 degrees in the temperature on the sunny, sheltered side of the wall and that of the windy side! This means that heat, loving fruits and vegetables ripen better and faster.

The effect of wind on the soil itself is well known to the gardener who sees his beds drying out and becoming hard to cultivate. This is the time to mulch and mulch again, and if you have worked compost into the soil faithfully each year, the soil retains its precious moisture with ease. In my most exposed beds, I can fell the difference immediately between those which have been composted and those which are on their way to becoming an adobe factory.

The wind is not the enemy. Remember that it is nature's own air conditioning, much respected by those who have endured muggy Eastern summers and the horrors of air conditioning. Wind is the all-important means which nature uses for pollution and distribution of seed. If it brings pollution from the mouth of the Valley, it also takes it away again. We would suffer without it!

Careful planning and planting can make it a friend of the garden.

REMEMBER WHEN?

From the "Carmel Valley Outlook," July 2, 1969

CHAIN LINK FENCE REJECTED

A chain link fence may be a practical, permanent enclosure for private property, but its esthetic appeal has a very low quotient. At least in Carmel Valley. The fence involved is about a thousand feet on the north side of Carmel Valley Road, a couple of miles east of the Village.

It quickly came to the attention of the advisory board which ruled that the fence did not conform to the design standards for the Valley, which by county ordinance is a judgment matter. The planning commission upheld this decision. It advised the owner that he would have to tear down the fence, move it several feet further from the road, and then landscape it so that the natural beauty of the road would remain intact.

ASSEMBLYMAN BOB WOOD NAMED TO COMMITTEES

Assemblyman Bob Wood (R-Monterey County) has been appointed to the Assembly Committee on Agriculture and the Committee on Natural Resources and Conservation.

Speaker Robert Monagan stated, "Because of Assemblyman Wood's great expertise in the field of agriculture and conservation the Assembly today voted unanimously to extend the memberships of both committees so that the appointments could be made."

RIDING IS FUN AT

RANCHO LAURELES
EQUESTRIAN CENTER

Some days we school; others we jump or do gymnastics. Most rides start out with a turn or two around our half-mile lapping track (the footing's grand!) and end with a refreshing cool-off for the horses' legs in the Carmel River. And Garland Park is our playground, for a leisurely trail ride or a fast conditioning trot uphill.

We're proving that a contented horse is a pleasure to own and ride. Our clean, safe, comfortable quarters and generous feedings of top-quality hay and bran, plus ready access to salt and fresh water put a bloom on your horse and keep it there.

Half of our grand old barn is rebuilt and occupied; the other half is almost ready. Keep an eye on us and you'll soon see new fencing and turnout paddocks and a cross-country course around the lapping track.

- Deluxe TC Ranch pipe corrals safeguard your horse with five-foot-high rails and six-foot dividers between horses to prevent biting or blanket chewing.
- High-protein alfalfa cubes fed morning and evening. Noon feedings by arrangement.

A ride into the Ventana Wilderness area

By LUCY SMITHSON

THE YOUNGEST CHILD was putting off bedtime by asking interesting questions. "Tell me about all the places where you and daddy ever lived," she demanded.

I resisted. "I do not start new topics of conversation after 7:30 p.m.," I answered. "Besides, it is in my motherhood contract that I go off duty at 8."

"Can I read the contract?" asked the child suspiciously.

"No, it's all fine print. Besides, it's not here—it's on file at the union hall."

"What else is in the contract?" The child had discovered a new line of questioning suitable for postponement of bedtime.

"It says I can nag you about keeping your room clean, that I can lose one sock every washday, and that I get the second Saturday of every month to go on ETI trailrides."

"Where did you ride to last Saturday?" The moppet grinned in happy anticipation of a lengthy story. And, of course, she got one.

ELEVEN RIDERS met for breakfast at Sambo's at the mouth of Carmel Valley at 7 a.m. They parked their loaded rigs in the shopping center's nearly empty lot. We had planned to ride into the Ventana Wilderness from Bottcher's Gap. But the trail boss had been unable to come. And no one else had ridden into the area since the disastrous Marble-Cone fire two years ago.

The Ventana Wilderness Area had been one of the favorite riding places of the local members of Equestrian Trails Inc. In fact, it had been one of the most popular stretches of National Forest in the United States as the closest wilderness to the San Francisco Bay Area and one which was hospitable even in winter when the Sierra was snowed in. Its five year average from 1971 to 1976 was 159 million visitor days.

In 1974, a rare snowfall had killed a lot of the smaller trees, especially madrone and small pines. The buildup of downed fuel added to the rapidity with which lightning-caused wildfires spread in the summer of 1977.

Two major fires, one starting near Ventana Cone and the other near Marble Peak, were ignited. They met, joined, and before being brought under control burned 272 square miles including almost all of the Ventana Wilderness Area.

For two years visitors were not allowed into the area. Rumors came out that aerial re-seeding of grass had not prevented silt run-off and slump from obliterating old trails. We heard that Big Pines had burned and no longer had the giant ponderosas that gave it its name ... that Comings Cabin, a popular picnic spot, was gone.

Now the U.S. Forest Service Headquarters in King City announced that some trails were to be re-opened. The Carmel River Trail from Los Padres Dam is open once again. So is the Pine Ridge Trail to Big Sur. Also the Pat Springs Trail out of Bottcher's Gap.

However, the riders were worried about setting off for Pat Springs without a guide. That area was one of the last to be brought under fire control ... some of the 58 bulldozers brought in for firefighting had been used to make a fire break right over Devil's Peak. How would we find the trail? And what sort of mess would we get into while looking for it? Bravely, we decided to find out.

THE PARKING AREA at Bottcher's Gap is as tiny and inadequate as ever. Only now the Palo Colorado Road is paved the full distance there ... all the way 10 miles inland to the end of the road. And the Skinner's Ridge Trail still heads uphill past the pit-toilets and past the slantwise campers' tents. There's very little flat land in the Ventana big enough to pitch a tent on.

We kept marveling that things looked familiar. The same giant oaks surrounding the same flowered meadows. The very same trail suffering not at all from a two-year rest, its compacted soil still resists encroachment by everything but blue lupins ... following the blue line to see where the path goes is also a familiar pastime in the Ventana.

Yes, there is a new firebreak along the top of ridgelines. But it's grassed in and not unpretty. Water bars have been carefully constructed across it and across parts of the trail actually helping to preserve the trail from future runoff and improving the footing.

Comings Cabin is gone and so is the old zinc bathtub that used to hang crazily out of its upper story. The story of the recluse who built it so far from civilization lives on. And so do the pear trees he planted. They are starting to set this year's crop of October pears in the tiny valley which seems otherwise unchanged. The U.S.F.S. has added something new ... a picnic table and campfire stove in the grove above the cabin site. They know that the old cabin is just the right distance—seven miles—from the trailhead to be a popular destination point.

WE WENT ON another two miles to Spaghetti Camp ... deep and green in its wet, shady gorge. The big ponderosas are still there. The fire cleared out some of the young trees and undergrowth. It left scorch marks 20 feet high on the fissured yellow bark. But the green heads of old trees above wave on serenely indifferent. The fire must have gone through there so fast, or the firefighters had been so fast in bombing it, that little damage was done. Surprisingly, even the grove of 1974 winterkilled pines with its tangle of fallen trunks still crowds the path to Spaghetti.

Another half-mile to Pat Springs and we are again rewarded. The springs are running just fine. The water trough is constantly being refilled with fresh, cold water.

"I can't understand why the forest isn't absolutely filled with hikers," said Carol Spicher. "This is all so beautiful."

"Well," replied husband Jerry, "they probably don't know what to expect ... same as we didn't. We thought it was all going to be burned black."

I concluded my bedtime story. "All the places daddy and I have ever lived have been within reach of the wilderness. And I am happy to say it is still all there ... waiting for my children."

The youngest child yawned. "I don't think you mothers have a motherhood contract," she said. "I think you go into it for fun. Same as horses. Or trail riding."

"Go to sleep!" I snarled warningly. "Or mother will strike!"

What do you think?
We'd like to know.

Goats make affectionate, clean pet

By NAN BOMBERGER

OUT IN THE CACHAGUA area of Carmel Valley—past the Hylton Saloon, the Cachagua General Store and the Jamesburg earth station, where the reception begins to fade from your car radio—Susan Iverson tends a herd of about 60 goats.

Susan has learned a remarkable lot about goats.

A walk with her through the pasture reveals that goats are affectionate animals that want to be petted and cuddled, that goats kid from January to June after a five-month gestation period, that there are five recognized pure breeds of dairy goats, and that goats are in demand for their milk, cheese and meat.

Susan, 16, lives on 12 acres in Cachagua with her parents, Ana and Michael Iverson, and her 14-year-old brother, Michael. They have started to build a barn and hope to have a house constructed before the next rainy season.

Susan, who will be a junior at Carmel High School next year, has acquired much of her extensive knowledge about goats the hard way: she paid $100 for her first purebred goats, which turned out not to be purebreds at all; one of her first goats was killed by a neighbor's dog and still another died of a parasitic disease of the intestine.

SUSAN STARTED HER herd as a 4-H project when she was in fourth grade and her family lived in Hidden Hills.

"I did a lot of reading about goats," she recalls, "and bought my first ones with money I had earned by selling Christmas cards."

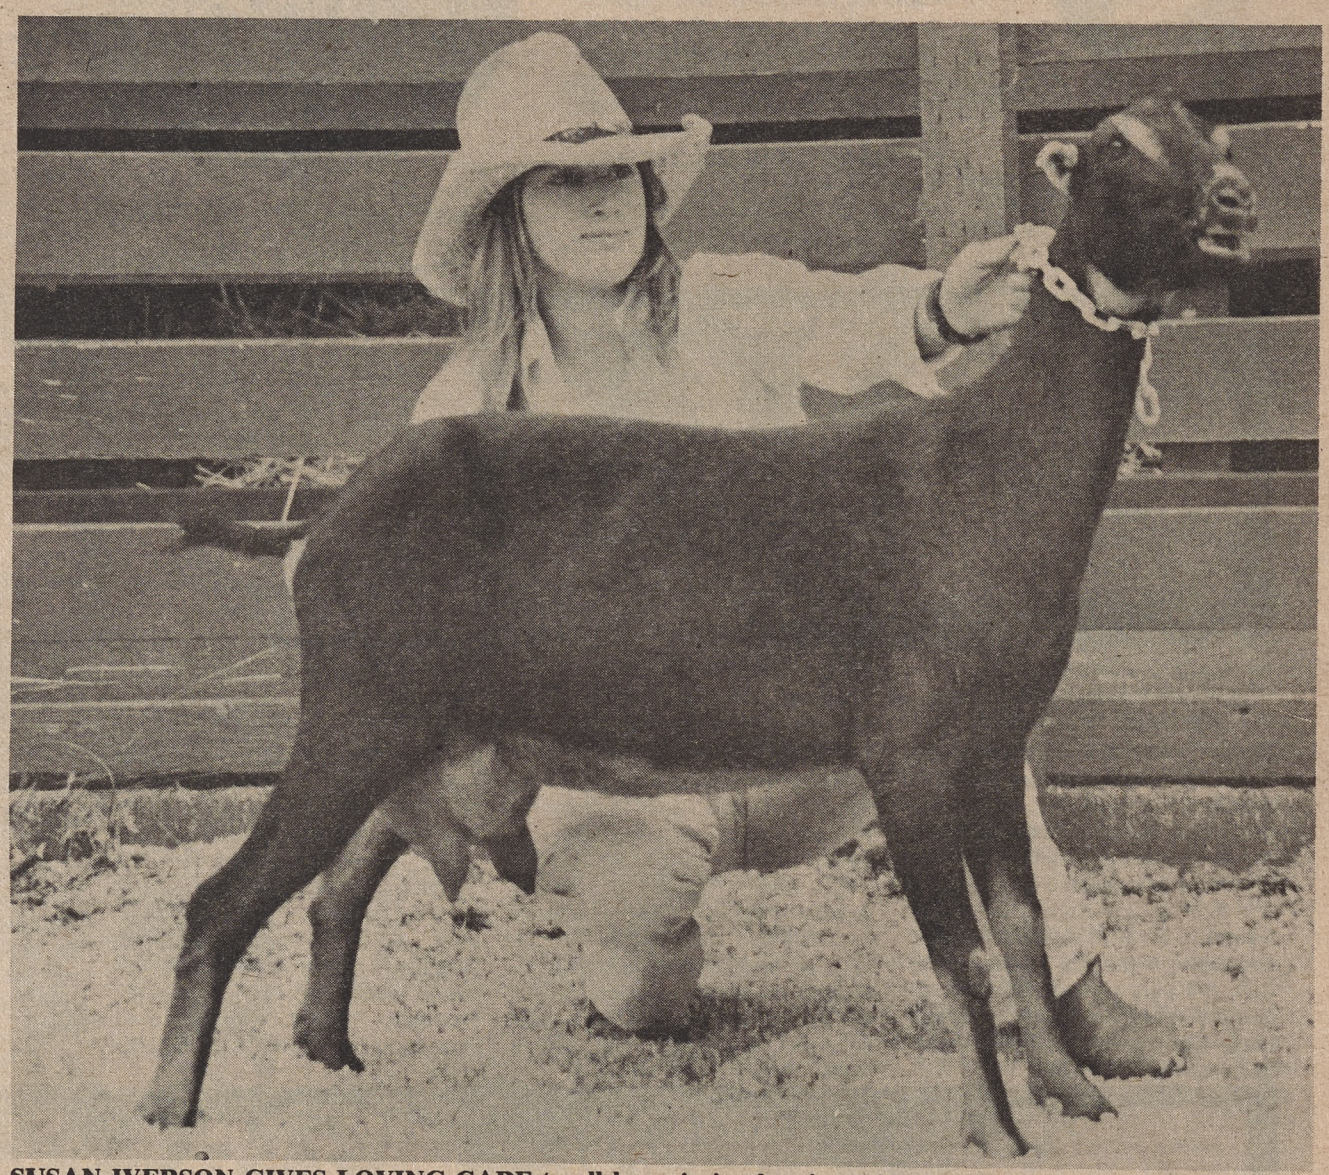
One of the goats shared her canopy bed and stood at the door when she needed to go out; she was the one killed by a dog. Susan explains that after goats have their horns burned off at about three weeks of age—and most do unless they will be sold soon for meat—they have no defenses against such threats as dogs.

The other goat she acquired at that time died of the parasitic disease coccidiosis. So she washed down the pens, waited a few months to be sure the organisms were destroyed and started over again.

This time she bought a French Alpine goat whom she named "Chlorine." With the help of "Chlorine" and two borrowed bucks, Susan was on her way to her quality herd.

"We keep only the top of the herd," Susan says, "and sell the rest. We just keep the best of the best." All of her herd are purebreds and are registered.

A purebred goat is one whose parents are both registered and both of the same breed. The American Dairy Goat Association Registry of Purebreds is opne only to those animals tracing their pedigrees to original importations.



SUSAN IVERSON GIVES LOVING CARE to all her goats with a top quality diet and extensive grooming. Consequently, they do well at goat shows such as the one last weekend at the Monterey fairgrounds. Here she is in the ring with "Galore Velvet," one of her La Mancha does. The 16-year-old Cachagua girl has names for all her goats and says they make affectionate and clean pets. (David Eaton photo)

ANOTHER BREED, KNOWN as an American goat, can be shown in purebred classes if the animals are the result of three generations of upgrading through breeding to purebred sires of one breed.

The first importations of goats in this country were from Switzerland. Records of early settlements in Virginia and New England indicate that Capt. John Smith and Lord Delaware brought milk goats to the colonies. However, there were few goats in this country until 1904. A group of Saanens and Toggenburg goats arrived that year and, followed by others in the next few decades, were the basis for the development of goat herds in this country.

Of the five pure breeds of dairy goats, Susan raises three: the French Alpine, which has an endless variety of color patterns in shades of white, brown and black, and is described as large and rangy; the La Mancha, which is the only breed developed in America and whose distinctive characteristic is its ears which are so small as to appear non-existent; and the Toggenburg with its short, flat coat of hair and delicate white facial markings.

Susan does not raise Nubians because she says, "They are loudmouths and too noisy." Nubians are relatively large and have pendulous ears and a convex Roman nose. She doesn't have any Saanen goats either; they have a more rugged build and vary in shade from light to dark fawn with white the most prized.

n pets, Valley girl claims

SUSAN HAS NAMED ALL her goats and they seem to respond to her beckoning. She claims they have individual personalities, not all of which can be accounted for by their breed.

She says goats make good pets and are quite clean. "They are like pets, but cleaner than dogs," she maintains. Also, in spite of the myth, goats don't eat everything. Just as Susan said that, one of them, named "Butterfly," like a contrary child, stretched up and took a nibble of a nearby notebook. But Susan insists they are selective in their menu. "If they seem to be eating a tin can, they're probably after the salt in the former contents."

What Susan's goats do eat is a special diet of alfalfa hay, oat hay, goat chow and livestock pellets. Feeding troughs plus salt blocks are set up both inside and outside the two-acre goat pasture. The goats graze over the other acreage, but don't stray far from their food troughs.

Ana Iverson, who participates in the goat project with her daughter, does the morning feeding on school days when Susan must leave at 6:30 a.m. for the hour-and-a-half ride to Carmel High. But Susan does the night feeding and most of the other care for the herd.

DURING THE SUMMER, this can be almost a full-time job. Besides feeding, it includes cleaning the pens, removing the horns, milking the does, shampooing and oiling the coats with a special hair conditioner for livestock.

"We keep our goats in show condition year round," Susan says, referring to their diet and their coats. This special care pays off when she takes her animals to goat shows.

Between March and October, the goat show season, Susan and her mother travel up and down the California coast to enter their La Mancha, Toggenburg and French Alpine purebreds in competition. They also are active in promoting and organizing these goat shows under the sanction of the American Dairy Goat Association.

Last weekend the first two-day official ADGA show was sponsored by the Salinas Valley Dairy Goat Association at the Monterey Fairgrounds. As active members of the SVDGA, the Iversons had worked hard organizing the event, recruiting entries and preparing their own animals for competition in every category of the show. Entries come from throughout Central California to compete in the various age levels of each of the breeds, some special categories and the grand championships.

Susan and her goats did spectacularly well at the show. They took home the grand championship of milking does trophy and the grand championship of Toggenburg kids award. An Iverson French Alpine junior buck won the junior championship and a number of Susan's other entries placed first and second.

THERE'S A DEFINITE SENSE of comradery at the goat shows. Although the families come from throughout California, they see each other frequently during the show season. The children play together and the adults resume their conversations where they left off at the last show. At the fairgrounds last Saturday night, the entrants joined together for a potluck dinner.

What else does Susan do with her goats besides show them and treat them as pets?

Some of them are of considerable value for their meat and milk.

In certain parts of the world goat meat is more highly prized than beef and goats are the leading milk producers. These animals are particularly valued in mountainous areas which cannot support grazing cattle.

A map in one of Susan's well-used goat books shows the goat producing countries of the world with each dot representing a herd of 100,000. The dots are thick in the northern Mediterranean countries, India and parts of Africa. There are only about a dozen dots in all of the United States, mostly across the southern tier. California is the leading milk goat state in this country.

SUSAN'S FAMILY SELLS goats' milk directly to individuals through several outlets. It is in demand by people who prefer it or who are allergic to cows' milk. Also, almost any animal thrives on goats' milk. The Iversons feed it to their hogs for whom it is a nearly complete diet. The SPCA buys a sizable supply to feed to the abandoned babies of such wild animals as deer and raccoons.

Some of the Iverson goats are sold for their meat to families who roast a whole goat for special occasions or who just prefer it to other kinds of meat. Susan says there is quite a demand for goats' meat and that it is a lucrative business. At auctions, goats' meat sometimes goes for a higher price than beef.

Susan also raises horses and pigs and has six dogs. As might be surmised, she is seriously interested in animal husbandry as a possible career; she thinks she would like to be a rancher and raise quarter horses. But being a rodeo clown or a country singer appeals to her, too. And she has thought a little about marine biology.

One thing is certain. This poised, intelligent young girl loves being out-of-doors with animals.

"Last summer I went in to town just four times. I hope to make fewer trips this summer."

We realize that trying to get through these inflation years with your savings intact is difficult, at best. For instance, if you had your money in a passbook savings account last year, you lost money to inflation. Through NOR-CAL's investment seminar workshop, we'll show you how you can stop losing money and start earning 10% or more return on your invested funds.
Among the points that will be covered in the seminar-workshop are:

■ How to increase your yield to above 10% ■ Why Savings and Loans invest heavily in trust deeds ■ How large or small an investment you can make ■ How to choose a brokerage firm ■ How to avoid a "guaranteed loss" investment ■ The safety aspects of trust deeds ■ The compounding factor of trust deeds ■ Much, much more

Decorators' ideas flow into Showhouse

THE PAINT IS going on, the carpet is going down, the drapes are going up and the furniture is going in at the Carmel Decorators' Showhouse for the Hidden Valley Music Seminars fund-raiser July 7-15.

The event has been planned by the Friends of Hidden Valley, with Mrs. Charles Smart and Mrs. Arthur Mertens as co-chairmen, and has been implemented by 12 Peninsula decorators.

They have transformed the Monterey Colonial on Franciscan Way in Carmel into a display of decorating ideas, schemes, furnishings and accessories.

Among the many interesting ideas of the Showhouse will be the patio which Dee Robertson has converted into an outdoor living room.

She uses redwood furniture which has been treated with a special antique process. The furniture was handcarved by the grandson of Marshall Sayers, who came to Carmel 50 years ago from Scotland.

A handcarved planter in the shape of a whale and a great antique horse will add interest, but the focus of the room will be an Italian wicker sofa in red lacquer. A painting by Robert Vala titled Orange Morning will complement this grouping and the patio planting will be by Flowers Limited of Pebble Beach.

DEE CAME TO Carmel in 1963 from Honolulu and San Francisco's Jackson Square. She has been married more than 35 years to a physician and has been involved with decorating for the same length of time.

About her career, Dee says, "I just love it. I couldn't do anything else."

Her most memorable decorating assignment was creating the decor for a dinner-dance honoring the Shah of Iran and Queen Saroya in 1954 in San Francisco.

Jan Gardner of Jan Gardner Interior Design has employed the theme of "Polka Dots with Passion" to decorate the master bedroom and bath. The hand-screened fabric of the bedspread and draperies provides the accent colors of burgundy, peach and taupe, and the muted tones of grasscloth enhance the rich brown of the carpet. Furnishings include an antique French pine armoire, a hand-hewn pine headboard and heavy wicker furniture.

Jan moved to Carmel 12 years ago after serving as an apprentice to an interior designer in the Virgin Islands.

She has owned a children's shop in the Doud House and has designed clothes. Jan was with Carmel Interior Consultants for two and one-half years before opening her own business, which specializes in residential decorating.

SCOTT MOORE HAS planned a guest bedroom retreat for an activity Carmel residents do well and often—entertaining guests.

He has chosen a Pacific-Oriental mood and uses muted blues, olives, rusts and natural tones. One wall is upholstered in a batik-like fabric, a coconut fiber rug covers the floor and sheer linen casements cover the windows. The bed is pushed against one wall with masses of cushions to give the impression of a day-couch. Peeled rattan furnishings in a contemporary parsons style contrast with a 17th-century antique pine writing table.

Scott studied architecture at the University of Southern California, although interior design was his major interest. He worked first with an architectural firm and then with interior decorators in Los Angeles and Phoenix. He came to Carmel in 1966.

Scott specializes in decorating residential and professional office suites in Northern California. "When the client comes into a room," Scott explains, "and he says, 'I'm home,' then I know I have achieved something."

Jeanne Klech, owner of the Pampered Hamper, has drawn on the collection of appointments in her Carmel Plaza boutique to complete the bathrooms of the Carmel Decorators' Showhouse. The theme of each bathroom has been set by the decorator of the adjacent room.

JEANNE STARTED HER business in Carmel Valley Village when her husband, who was store planner, needed a model bathroom. Hers was one of the forerunners of bathroom accessories shops and today it displays the many individualized items that are available in this field. She now operates a shop in Carmel Plaza and lives in Carmel Valley Village.

Other decorators who have donated their services to the Showhouse are Charleen Matoza, Ed Hamstreet, Gail Lehmen, Helen Montgomery, Scott Lunday, Kay Harrington, Agnes Montgomery-Downes and Zantman Art Galleries.

Tickets, at $3.50 each, can be purchased at the shops of the participating decorators and at the following locations: Thomas B. Scanlon Antiques and Hidden Valley Music Seminars in Carmel Valley Village; Lois Toole Catering in the Mid Valley Shopping Center and the How to Do Anything Bookstore in Carmel.

The Showhouse will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily through July 15.

Because it is located on a winding residential street, visitors are asked to park at the Carmel Mission Baseball Field on Rio Road and walk or take the shuttle service to the house.

Barracudas' 15-18 year olds top scorers

Girls in the 15-18 age group were top team scorers when the Carmel Barracudas competed in the Gilroy Gators Invitational Relays at Gilroy, June 16-17.

Beth Allard, Maureen Falge, Suzy Hermanson, Denise La Fontaine, Susan Lockwood and Jennie Powell took five firsts and a second. Allard, Falge, Hermanson and Lockwood set a new team record, finishing first in the 400-yard freestyle relay at 4:18.82.

High scorers for the boys were the 11-12 team of Greg Falge, Mike Falge, Josh Hardy and Kent Nybakken. The quartet set two new meet records in the process of cap-capturing three first and three second places.

The foursome of Colin Wozencraft, Sean Mullen, Mark Reardon and Mike Hardy snatched a new team record for 13-14 boys with a time of 2:06.36 in the 200-yard medley relay.

Other foursomes who won firsts were Dede Camarena, Sandy Morris, Tory Wester and Cassie Griffith in the 8-and-under 100-yard medley relay; Stacy Anastasia, Mary McKay, Morris and Wester in the 8-and-under 100-yard T-shirt relay; Thais Treanor, Tiffany Anderson, Erika Radon and Erica Olin in the 10-and-under 200-yard butterfly-breaststroke relay; Lisa Radon, Indi Zeleny, Katie Falge and Lisa Paik in the 13-14 400-yard individual medley relay, and Jamie Olson, Mullen, Reardon and Hardy in the 13-14 200-yard butterfly-breaststroke relay.

Barracudas seek sponsors

Members of the Carmel Barracuda Swimming and Diving Team will begin rapping on doors this week in the Carmel area to seek pledges for the Barracuda Waterama and Dive-a-Thon on July 7-8 at the Carmel High School and Carmel Valley Community pools.

Cash pledges for the Waterama can be made in any amount. Each swimmer will seek pledges for each length of the pool he swims. He will have two hours in which to swim up to 200 lengths of the pool (just a little short of three miles). In the Dive-a-Thon, participants will attempt to dive for 24 consecutive hours and will collect pledges for each hour.

Because of cutbacks by the Carmel Unified School District, the non-profit swim club must cover costs of its operation and use of the two pools. Profits from the Waterama and Dive-a-Thon will pay for equipment, coaches' salaries, pool rental and upkeep, and awards for swim meets.

Orchestra to perform Friday

The Hidden Valley Opera Orchestra, under the baton of guest conductor Joyce Johnson, will perform the works of Dvorak, Copland and Haydn Friday, June 29 at All Saints' Episcopal Church, Dolores and Ninth, Carmel. The orchestra's third concert in its 1979 summer series will begin at 8 p.m.

The 30-piece ensemble will perform the Czech Suite, Op. 39 by Dvorak; Salieri's Concerto for Flute and Oboe; Pelleas and Melisande by Faure; Copland's Three Latin American Sketches; and Haydn's Symphony No. 100, "Military."

This is the first orchestra-in-residence for the Hidden Valley Music Seminars.

Tickets, at $3, are available at the door or by phoning 659-3115.

Obituaries

ALEX ONESSIMO

Alex Onessimo, a native of the Carmel Valley area and a full-blooded California Indian, died at the age of 79 at the Carmel Convalescent Hospital after a long period of ill health. Onessimo was possibly the last California Indian in this area.

He was born in Carmel Valley, and worked for many years as a ranch hand for Roy Meadows, residing on Scarlett Road.

Onessimo, along with his late brothers, Berthold and John, worked with Harry Downie on the many restoration projects at the Carmel Mission Basilica.

Survivors include a brother, Joe, of Stockton; a niece, Mrs. Margaret Mangares of Seaside; and three nephews, Alex, of San Jose, Pete, of San Francisco, and Vince, of Hayfork.

A mass of Christian burial was celebrated Friday at the Carmel Mission.

FRANCIS SMITH DANE

Francis Smith Dane died Thursday, June 21 at Community Hospital following a brief illness. He was 70.

He was born in Lexington, Mass., and came to Carmel Valley from Pasadena 10 years ago.

Dane was a graduate of Bowdoin College in Brunswick, Maine, and participated in the second expedition of Admiral Byrd to the South Pole.

Survivors include his widow, Sally Lu Dane of the family home in Carmel Valley; two sons, William of Point Richmond and Frank of Santa Rosa; two daughters, Sarah Lucy of Carmel Valley and Nancy of Oakland; a brother, Nathan Dane of Brunswick; a sister, Marcia Dane of Lexington, and three grandchildren.

No formal service was conducted, as were Dane's wishes. Cremation was by the Farlinger Funeral Home, followed by the scattering of his ashes at sea.

The family asks that memorial contributions be donations to Young Life, 426 Jefferson, Monterey.

JOHN MORROW ROACH

John Morrow Roach died Tuesday, June 19 at Community Hospital after collapsing in his Carmel Valley home. He was 62 years old.

He was born in Red Lodge, Mont., and had lived in Carmel for 10 years. Until he retired in 1968, he was the owner and manager of United Tent and Supply Company of Los Angeles. He was also a veteran of World War II.

Roach was a member of the Al Malaikah Shrine in Los Angeles, the Order of the Eastern Star and member and past patron of the Eagle Rock Masonic Lodge.

Surviving him is his widow, Florence, of Carmel.

Services were Friday at the Paul Mortuary Chapel, with the Rev. Dwight D. Edwards officiating. Cremation followed in the Little Chapel by-the-Sea.

The family requests that any memorials be contributions to Community Hospital or to the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula.

Low-income housing

Developers rap county growth control policy

MORE COMPLAINTS than suggestions were tossed at the Monterey County Growth Management Task Force at its public hearing Wednesday, June 20, on the implementation of its Growth Management Policy.

Complaints came from Salinas and North County builders and developers who were concerned with the proposed low-income housing provisions of the plan.

The developers and several other individuals also protested the rate of progress being made on implementing the plan—some accusing the county of going too fast, others of going too slow.

The four-member subcommittee was seeking public recommendations on implementing the policies adopted by the supervisors last September. The Board of Supervisors hearing on including the growth management policy in the county's General Plan will be in late July.

The major concern expressed at the task force's hearings last week was low-income housing. The task force recommended 15 percent of the allotted 4,500 units for the next five years be low-income housing.

Members of the building and development trades resented being made responsible for low-income housing. Brian Finegan, attorney for the building trades and their representatives on the task force, felt that "low-income housing is a community problem, not a developer's problem."

SALINAS BUILDER Sam Graham asked why the builder is singled out in providing for low-income families and not other businesses. He also felt the task force was rushing into a program which he termed "a moratorium for development."

Builder Jerry Crawford favored the development of modulars and mobile home areas to fulfill the low-income housing requirements.

Another point of contention between the task force and the builders was the provisions for the mechanism to allow this low-income housing. Despite the plan's allowance for 15 percent of housing for low-income families, although there are 37.5 percent low-income families in the county, developers still resented the task force's recommended alternatives. The alternatives included a point system favoring projects providing low-income housing, the establishment of in-lieu fees or providing land for further low-income subdevelopment, deed restrictions on resale of low-income units and density bonuses for the developer.

None of these mechanisms pleased the builders.

Crawford thought "we subsidize too much today for other people." Finegan stated that "low-income housing doesn't mean new housing. As people move up, they make low-income housing available."

Donald Dunsford, a Prunedale realtor, felt the county should participate in a joint venture with the developer to encourage low-income housing.

OTHER MEMBERS OF the task force criticized the report as a compromise document pleasing no one completely.

Glen Chang, representing the Sierra Club on the Growth Management Task Force, called the policy "a starting point," and urged the commission "to make it work." She said it was "not meant to be a finished, inflexible policy."

Commissioner Joe Sullivan, chairman of the task force, agreed, stating that the "900 (units of housing per year) is not set in concrete, it is a flexible figure."

"Take the time to do it, to devise a mechanism to make it work," urged Marit Evans, representing the League of Women Voters on the task force.

Commenting on the rash of complaints and oppositions to the plan itself, and the ignoring of the task force's request for comments on implementation, she stated, "The task force did the job it was asked to do at considerable cost in time and tax money. It could not, and should not, be expected to resolve policy questions that are the responsibility of the planning commission, or take on the work of the professional staff."

She urged the planning commission to "get on with the job."

THE MONTEREY "BIG I" GOLF CLASSIC was won by three members of the Carmel High School team. Congratulated by classic director Harry Weiler, the local winners are (left to right) Andrew Whitacre, third place; Curtis Jones, second place, and John Pirotte, who won the tournament after a playoff and with a score of one-over-par 73. The annual tournament is sponsored by the Monterey Peninsula Independent Insurance Agents and was open to junior golfers under 18 who live in Monterey, San Benito and Santa Cruz counties. The three local winners now advance to the State Finals, July 10-11, in Santa Cruz. Each has a chance to qualify for the National Championship, won by Bobby Clampett in 1975, which will be in Ann Arbor, Mich., in August.

Amateur golf championships Sat.

Final rounds of the California Golf Association's 69th annual Amateur Championship will be played Thursday through Saturday, June 28-30 at the Pebble Beach Golf Course.

The top 32 golfers who remain after qualifying rounds Monday through Wednesday will compete in quarterfinal matches Thursday beginning at 7:30 a.m. Semifinal rounds will be played Friday morning and afternoon with tee time at 7:30 a.m. The 36-hole championship match is scheduled to begin at 8 a.m. Saturday.

Though the 1978 amateur champion, Bobby Clampett of Carmel Valley, will be unable to defend his title, the field of players will remain strong. Among the top golfers expected to compete in the final matches are Doug Clarke, the former Trans-Mississippi Champion who recently returned from England as a member of the victorious U.S. Walker Cup team; former runners-up Dick Runkle and Ron Commons; and USGA Public Links' Champion Ted Richards.

Nathaniel Crosby, the 17-year-old who has taken over for his late father as the head of the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am, John Brodie and two-time NCGA champion Bryon Pini will also compete in the event.

Spectators are welcome to observe the matches at no charge; however, the $4 per car gate fee into Del Monte Forest will be in effect.

For further information, phone 624-6611.

consistent with the County's General Plan adopted pursuant to Government Code Section 65302. Inasmuch as Respondent Monterey County does not have a general plan meeting the requirements of Government Code Section 65302, the County has no way of knowing whether the adoption or amendments to the zoning ordinances are consistent with the requisite general plan.

6.7. Respondent Monterey County is now, and threatens to continue, processing and approving zoning ordinances and zoning amendments unless and until restrained by this Court.

7. Thus, Monterey County violated Section 66473.5 when on February 28, 1979 its Board of Supervisors approved the initial subdivision of 35 acres of the Carmel Valley Ranch Subdivision, because the County could not make the requisite finding of consistency since it did not have a duly adopted general plan meeting the requirements of Section 65302 of the Government Code.

8. Respondent has a clear, present, and ministerial duty to adopt a general plan containing specified and mandatory elements and to approve proposals for subdivisions only if it makes adequate findings that the proposed subdivision is consistent with each of the required mandatory elements of its general plan.

THIRD CAUSE OF ACTION

9. Petitioners hereby incorporate Paragraphs 1 through 8, inclusive, as though fully set forth.

10. The Carmel Valley Ranch Specific Plan was adopted by the County Board of Supervisors on or about January 3, 1977.

11. The adoption of the Carmel Ranch Specific Plan was in violation of Government Code Section 65451 because at the time the Specific Plan was adopted there was no legally adopted and legally adequate General Plan to serve as a basis for a Specific Plan or to be systematically executed or implemented by a Specific Plan. There is no way to tell if a Specific Plan will implement the General Plan pursuant to Government Code Section 65451.

12. Thus, Monterey County violated Government Code Section 66451 when, on January 3, 1977, its Board of Supervisors approved the Specific Plan of Carmel Valley Ranch because the County could not make the requisite finding that the Specific Plan was necessary or convenient to use implementation of the County General Plan since it did not have a duly adopted General Plan meeting the requirements of Section 65302 of the Government Code.

12.1. Petitioners believe and allege that this Petition/Complaint is necessary in order that the County of Monterey not further delay performance of its required duties and in order that the residents of the County be protected against inadequately planned decisions for adverse intensification of land use with attendant cumulative impacts of congestion, pollution (both air and noise), diminishing water supplies and quality, decreasing open space and development of areas hazardous to public safety. All of the foregoing is occurring and will continue to occur unless and until the foregoing items and other problems are considered and resolved in the County's General Plan as required by Government Code Section 65302. Petitioners therefore further allege that the granting of the relief prayed for in this Petition/Complaint will substantially benefit a class of persons beyond the Petitioners, namely all residents, would-be residents and visitors in Monterey County, and accordingly Petitioners are acting in the capacity of private attorneys general and should have attorney's fees and costs awarded consistently therewith.

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays that:

1. An alternative writ issue under the Seal of this Court which commands respondent Monterey County to rescind its approval of the tentative subdivision map for the Carmel Valley Ranch Subdivision, or to show cause before this Court why it has not done so and why a peremptory writ should not issue;

2. On the return of the alternative writ of mandate and hearing on the order to show cause, a peremptory writ of mandate issue under the Seal of this Court compelling respondent Monterey County to vacate permanently its approval of the tentative subdivision map granted February 28, 1979, for the Carmel Valley Ranch Subdivision, and requiring Monterey County to amend its general plan to conform to the legal requirements of Government Code Section 65302.

3. An alternative Court issue under the Seal of this Court which commands respondent Monterey County to rescind the approval of the Specific Plan for the Carmel Valley Ranch Subdivision.

4. On return of the alternative writ of mandate issue under Seal of this Court and compelling respondent Monterey County to vacate permanently its approval of the Specific Plan for the Carmel Valley Ranch Subdivision.

5. A preliminary and permanent injunction issue restraining Monterey County from any further subdivision approvals, either tentative or final, unless and until the County adopts a General Plan meeting the requirements of Government Code Section 65302.

6. A preliminary and permanent injunction issue restraining Monterey County from enacting or amending its zoning ordinances until the County has adopted a general plan meeting the requirements of Government Code Section 65302.

7. Attorney's fees pursuant to California Code of Civil Procedure Section 1021.5.

8. Petitioner to recover the costs of this action.

9. For the granting of such further relief as the Court deems proper.

DATED this 25th day of June, 1979.

Richard H. Rosenthal,
Attorney for Plaintiffs

GILBERT & SULLIVAN'S timeless operetta, The Pirates of Penzance, will be the first production of the Hidden Valley Music Theatre Ensemble. 'Pirates' opens this weekend

The Pirates of Penzance, Gilbert and Sullivan's lyrical operetta about a band of lively pirates, will open the Hidden Valley Music Theater Ensemble summer season Saturday and Sunday, June 30-July 1 at Hidden Valley Music Seminars, Ford and Carmel Valley roads, Carmel Valley.

The Hidden Valley production will be staged cabaret-style at 8 p.m. Saturday and 2:30 p.m. Sunday. The audience will watch the show while seated around tables enjoying wine and cheese.

Since its opening in New York in 1879, The Pirates of Penzance has delighted audiences with its lighthearted story and sparkling collection of songs by the famous musical duo.

The operetta is about the escapades of young Frederick, a boy who was mistakenly apprenticed to a band of pirates by his nursemaid. The story unfolds on Frederick's 21st birthday, the day his apprenticeship is to end. An unhappy Frederick is delighted when the pirates discover he was born on Feb. 29 during a leap year and has a long time to go before reaching his 21st birthday.

Directed by Fred Weiss, the operetta stars Gregory Mercer as Frederick; Velvali de Ayxa as Mabel; and Reg Huston as the Pirate King.

Additional performances will be staged July 5-8, 12-13, 15, 20, 21, 28 and Aug. 9, 12, 19, 24, 26, 30 and Sept. 1-2.

Admission is $6 adults and $4 juniors (children 14 and under); Saturday shows are $8 and $6, respectively. Tickets are available at Countrywide Crafts, The Barnyard and How To Do Anything Bookstore, Carmel; Lily Walker Records, Pacific Grove; The Record Cove, Monterey; and Hidden Valley.

For reservations or additional information, phone 659-3115.
